[From Saturday's Daily.]

The Tiger has music again. Stoves are receiving attention. Nothing heard of the jail escapes. Isn't Washington street, in Phoenix, the nicest in the Territory?

The Knights of Pythias have moved from the Wadley building to a hall in the Irvine building.

A part of the front wall of an old adobe building on Montezuma street have fallen into the street, but injured no one. The remainder is dangerous.

In today's HERALD will be found a very interesting communication on mica, written by Mr. Travis the mineralogist. With such deposits of mica as it is almost certain there is in this Territory, and its present and rapidly increasing uses and value, good mica locations must soon become valuable property.

Let some one try the pecan, which is a valuable tree in western Texas, and would probably be sent to our valley.

The report that the comet has broken into three pieces seems to be an error, as it looked up brilliantly this morning in one grand sweep across the eastern sky.

Hayden's Ferry Letter.

TEMPE, Oct. 5, 1882.

Our school is in session, Miss Dumphrey teacher, and as usual the cry is: What book shall we use and where are the books to be had? If parents have been authorized to select suitable text books by law for the use of the Territorial schools and the same has been done, whether wisely in all respects or not, would it not be better to adopt those selections to avoid continual confusion and actual financial damage to the children? We can not all have our own favorite text books. The best teacher in America would fail in a school where there are no recognized text books. Let some competent authorized parties tell us what we are in duty bound to do, and let us do it. By all means let our schools be put in working order by proper classification.

Just is sick; hence, jottings are scarce. But some disciples of Esculapian have paid us a visit from Phoenix, so we presume health is once more restored to the community. The Sabbath School picnic has been postponed from Saturday of this week to Saturday of next week.

A lodge of Good Templars has been organized here, the ceremonies took place last Saturday night. This is a worthy effort and will furnish rich intellectual food for the minds of young people during the winter, will induce thought and self-education on a vital question of religion. It is a little heaven.

Phoenix Fired!

An Exciting Conflagration and Complete Destruction of a Corral and Livery Business.

Yesterday about 1 o'clock p. m. our town was thrown into an intense excitement, by the discovery of a fire in the extreme southwest corner of the Montezuma Corral, now occupied by the feed, livery and sales business of Messrs. Demarbaix & Sanders.

The facts that there was no water in the ditches, that every thing was as dry as tinder, the sun beating down hot, the wind in the high direction and the fire at the right point to sweep off the principal business portion of the town, made the position one of the most desperate, and every one instantly understood it the moment the location of the fire was known.

The fire started in the hay loft of the extreme south-west corner of the corral and in such a position that it was impossible to get at it readily with a hose or anything of the kind, immediately under the roof. It was instantly discovered by Mr. Sanders, who was about the corral and who turned on the water at once, but within a minute it was beyond control and rapidly running north in the west shed and hay loft, and easterly through the harness shop, office, etc., on the south side of the corral.

Within five minutes the hay lofts, sheds, office, granaries, etc., around the four sides of the corral, some 200 feet front by 137 back were a sea of hissing hungry flames, which seemed to vie with each other as to which could most and first devour.

The moment the fire was discovered, Mr. Sanders ordered the stock loaded and led out of the corral which was accomplished without much difficulty, as it happened that hour that much of it was out in use and that the stage company had just sent out the most of its stock with the noon stage. Help was instantly at hand in abundance and the coaches, wagons, and carriages were rolled out to a point of safety, and considerable damage was also saved.

Strangely enough, every one seemed to forget the office till it was too late and its contents were completely destroyed, including the entire set of books and all records of the business together with about $150 in paper money. Two hours before the fire appeared in the hay loft, an incipient blaze was discovered by the men about the corral in a stall on the front and west of the entrance, perhaps twenty or thirty feet from the corner where the fire started.

This was at once extinguished and the vicinity completely saturated with water, so that, though a watch-dog, not the least sign of fire appeared in that spot.

The rapid advance of the flames towards the east side of the corral and the amount of combustible material along that side together with the large number of frame buildings immediately in that locality, with but a small low adobe between the corral and them, and a number of sheds and other out buildings ranged close along the outside of the corral wall toward the rear, were a source of great alarm lest the fire should leap the wall when there was imminent danger that much of the business portion of the town would go.

The out buildings, which were at once torn down and a wide open space made in the rear of the row of buildings which fronted on the street, so that the front of the fire was confined to the southeastern corner of the corral and the low adobe building outside the wall at that point. The wooden roofs were covered with blankets which were thoroughly wet down, and the adobe roof and walls were deluged by all the water that could be found in the vicinity. After a struggle of half an hour, it became apparent that the flames could be kept within the walls of the corral and the property holders along the street began to breathe more freely.

The occupants of the buildings, however, suffered the losses attendant upon the stampede which ensued and the rapid removal of their effects from the buildings.

The postoffice, Rothrock & Catton's photograph gallery, book, stationery and variety store, the express office, R. G. Hetti's restaurant, Olsson & Coleman's shoe shop, and the Cabinet saloon, were all hastily vacated, the greatest loss accruing to Messrs. Rothrock & Catton, on account of delicate nature of their goods and the lumber with which they could be carried away.

The wooden awnings along the street to the corner of Center & Washington streets, were torn down and also that of Goldman & Co. on the northeast corner of the same street, to assist in preventing the fire from leaping Center street, should it reach that point, which it seriously threatened to do for some time.

The losses were very considerable, the business of Messrs. Demarbaix & Sanders suffering to the extent of about $6,000. All their feed, which had just been laid in for the winter, was destroyed. They are entirely uninsured. The corral, which belongs to Mr. J. D. Monihon, now absent in the east, was insured for $2,000 which probably covers two thirds of his loss. Injuries to goods, and buildings along the back alley will aggregate not more, perhaps, than $1,000. Altogether, not less than $8,000 of damage has been done.

The adobe walls of the corral are rapidly crumbling and it will be necessary to remove them entirely, indeed, the most of them will probably fall down as quite a portion has already done.

The great danger to the town on account of the absence of water should not be overlooked. Had the flames reached beyond the corral the town would have been utterly helpless, and the town authorities should see that we are immediately connected with more than one canal, and that arrangements be made that when one canal is dry for cleaning purposes the other will supply the town. Property and business is rapidly becoming too valuable here for the town to be utterly without the means of helping itself in case of fire. The town was lucky, not provident, as it should be. More than that it is fully time that a fire company should be organized and that the town authorities should make some arrangements such that property thrown on the streets should not be subject to be pillaged by a set of thieves as it was yesterday. What are the duties of our town Marhal and the hired watchmen if it is not to lend their protection under such circumstances? And yet things were carried off almost with impunity. We have heard of considerable losses in this way that a few men who would make it their business could prevent.

The town could well afford to exempt a fire company from all town taxes and jury duties to equip them with a good hand engine, Babcock extinguishers, ladders, etc., when there would be some chance in case of the recurrence of yesterday's experience. More than that such a move should have a tendency to decrease the rates of insurance sufficiently to pay for all appliances necessary to a fire company in a short time.

The origin of the fire is a mystery. No smoking is permitted in the corral and no one allowed in the hay lofts. The first blaze discovered can only be accounted for on the ground that some one must have tossed the lighted stump of a cigar through one of the openings on the wall. How the second occurred cannot be so easily accounted for. Some one must have taken special pains to throw a lighted cigar through the narrow opening between the wall and roof made by the rafters or matches must have been placed among the shingles to take fire from the heat of the sun. The business losses very incalculable, indeed.

INCIDENTS OF THE FIRE.

Last evening as Miss Hincell, a lady friend and a child were walking near one of the walls of the corral they noticed it begin to tatter and springing from the wall into the street were followed by the falling wall which covered them with dust and flying particles. It was a close call and the ladies are to be congratulated on their fortunate escape.

The corral wall was finally turned up. The plank wall burned down to the water and the well caved in. Numbers of men could be seen standing about without attempting to raise a finger in assistance, and it was with much effort that a line of buckets from a distant well in the rear of the buildings could be formed.

A number of buckets and other material have been recovered from the Chinese quarters of the town. R. H. Hetti's tobacco and cigar store suffered from depredations of the pillagers.

Since writing the above we learn that Mr. Looney, of the Cabinet S. Town, estimates his loss by injury to his fine furniture and carpets and liquors carried off, and awnings and partitions torn to pieces at about $1,000.

The Post Office was in running order this morning through the energetic work of Mr. Mowrey.

H. M. McDonald has been appointed Deputy Sheriff.

Mr. H. Pinner, of McDowell, and Messrs. R. H. Martin and M. Cavness, of Pinal, are paying their respects to Phoenix.

Mr. Kling, of the Centennial district, is in town for a day or two, coming on horseback by the way of Yuma, a ride of nearly 400 miles, made in less than eight days.

The mail train from the west ran off the track west of Maricopa on Saturday night which made the Sunday's mail somewhat late. We believe no damage was done.

Mr. Rosenthal, of the firm of Rosenthal & Kutner, returned on Saturday from a trip to San Francisco where he lay in a large stock of goods for the winter. Mr. Rosenthal also made the beautiful Napa valley a running visit as far north as St. Helena, where he has relatives residing.

Messrs. Demarbaix & Sanders will continue their business at the corral one door west of the Phoenix Hotel, where they may be found in the future. Their stock of horses and carriages are still in excellent trim and ample accommodations will be furnished to the traveling public as at the old stand.

Informa ion reaches us that much complaint is being made concerning the care of the help less at the County hospital. It is stated that the attendants are off on a spree and the hospital affairs are left to take care of themselves. The Supervisors should look into the matter at once.

The eleven Indians taken from San Carlos to Tucson for trial concerning the Cibola massacre, have been discharged by the grand jury for want of evidence and the Indians have been returned to the Reservation. Wasn't it just a little pity for them to attempt to indict these Indians anyway?

TERRITORIAL ITEMS.

The Arizona Sampling Company has been organized with plenty of funds to establish sampling works at Middlefork (Beale Springs) in Mohave county. The capacity will be about fifty tons in every ten hours.

The Graham County Times which has been missing among our exchanges explains its absence as follows: "After a three weeks suspension the Times reappears today under a new management. It has now come to stay. The paper will be run as an independent journal, and will discuss all affairs without fear or favor."

The Times is now under the management of W. W. Jones and we hope to see it enjoy the prosperity it deserves.

Porter in 61 be.

Splendid Welcome to the Next Congressman.

PINAL, A. T., Oct. 8.—Judge Porter arrived here from Florence on Friday evening and addressed the citizens in an hour or two later. There had been no announcement of his coming, but in the short space of an hour bonfires and salutes were prepared, and a large audience assembled at Hunt's hall. The speaker was introduced by Judge Keymer, gave an able exposition of the needs of our young Territory, and how to secure the active aid of the government. He made a most complete and satisfactory refutation of all charges against him before his resignation, and clearly proved that the animus of them was malicious, springing from personal and political jealousies. He had never been served with a copy of the charges, and was left without an opportunity officially to refute them. His personal relations with the Attorney General and administration were entirely amicable and harmonious. Judge Porter wound up with a masterly statement of the Indian question. The assembly displayed great enthusiasm, the speaker making a highly favorable impression on the audience, amongst whom were many Democrats. After the speeches the sentiment was unanimous in favor of Porter. The Judge left for Globe on Saturday morning.

Who Owns The Timber.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6th.—Secretary Teller has rendered a decision respecting the right of mill-owners and residents up a mineral lands of the United States to cut wood and timber from such lands within the lines of mining claims regularly located and possessed under local laws and customs, and laws of the United States governing the location of such claims, so long as they comply with the law governing their possession, are invested by Congress with the exclusive right to the possession, and enjoyment of all the surface included within the lines of their location. This right amounts to property, and is capable of being enjoyed or transferred, subject to all ordinary rules governing the enjoyment of all other property. It may, consequently, be protected in the Courts, and it is the duty of the possessor to care for his own if a trespass be attempted by strangers. The Government having granted the locator with a complete grant of possession, he alone is concerned for its protection, and may lawfully maintain a suit to that end; but he can no longer, after availing himself of the executive privilege, ask the Government to bring action for what is no trespass, except against such individual right of possession.

A Miser Dies.

VINCENNES, Ind. Oct. 7.—Joseph Fry, an aged miser has closed his career of money getting. Some years ago the Board of Health requested him to procure a new suit of clothes. Inside his shirt there was yesterday found a stinking mass of greenbacks amounting to $1250. His chief avocation has been collecting cigar stumps and he died from attempting to live on green apples. He will give $250 to the Catholic church and the remainder to a sister in Germany.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 7.—We understand that Internal Revenue Commissioner Raum will speedily retire from his office whether he is successful in his ambition to succeed Senator Davis or not. It is known that Folger has for some time desired the removal of Raum, as the Commissioner and the Secretary have had serious disagreements. Folger has objected to Raum's prolonged absence, and asserted that Raum resigned his office at the request of Garfield, and that he subsequently asked that his resignation be withdrawn. This, however, was not permitted, as it is believed that Raum has been holding office until his resignation is accepted. Such, at least, is the version that has been given of the Commissioner's office. It is believed here that he does not expect to resume his duties, at least for any length of time.
